What does the Mississippi Public Service Commission do?

The Public Service Commission regulates telecommunications, electric, gas, water and sewer utilities. The agency is charged with assuring that rates and charges for services are just and reasonable, that the service rendered is reasonably adequate, and that any facilities constructed or acquired are required for the convenience and necessity of the public. Additionally, the agency exercises safety jurisdiction over intrastate gas pipelines and has area jurisdiction over all public utilities. In carrying out its responsibilities, the commission answers complaints, conducts investigations and holds both formal and informal hearings.

Should I contact the Public Service Commission regarding my electric, gas or telephone disconnect notice?

The first thing to do is contact your utility company to discuss your situation and, if you wish, to set up payment arrangements. The toll-free telephone number for each utility company should be located on your individual billing statement. If you are not able to get the issue resolved with your utility company, and your company is not an electric cooperative, then please contact the Mississippi Public Service Commission at 1-800-356-6429 and we will do our best to help in any way we can as a service to Mississippians.

What about Cable? Does the Public Service Commission have jurisdiction over cable and satellite TV?

No. The Public Service Commission does not have jurisdiction over cable TV. Cable TV is franchised on the local or city level and regulated by the Federal Communications Commission or also known as the FCC.

What about Wireless and Cell Phone Companies?
